Actionable data to understand at-risk students

More specifically address your learners’ needs by identifying and understanding the key metrics that put those learners at risk of stopping out.

No more one-dimensional outreach

Proactively engage students before their challenges become critical through multi-channel engagement campaigns. Increase engagement — and the likelihood of retention — by using the digital communication tools your students prefer.

Expert coaching ensures true support

Guide learners to their ultimate educational goals with qualified coaches with extensive higher education experience. When true challenges arise, many learners prefer to speak to a real person — support them in their times of greatest need.

Anthology Retention Coaching in Action

“Anthology’s retention program provides our online students with the proactive support they need, when they need it. I appreciate that the Anthology coaches quickly follow up with students as soon as they show up as a risk, and when necessary they put these at-risk students in contact with university resources, such as our advising team.”
